MALLISTER FUNDRAL,

Grace Church Crowded With the Friends of the Dead Man-A Crush at the Doors-New Haven Friends Present.

New York, Feb. 4.-The funeral services over the body of the late Ward McAllister were held at 10 o'clock this morning at Grace church. Fashionable society in New York city was well rep resented, but it was the general public which was chiefly in evidence.

At 9:30 o'clock the doors of the church were opened. Two friends of the dead man stood at the door, and by slight nods of recognition let into seats on the center aisle those who had a right to be there. Others were shown to seats on the left or right.

The chancel was beautifully dece rated with palms, and with wreaths, prosses and other floral pieces sent by friends. They had been sent to the house, 16 West Thirty-sixth street and the services of half a dozen florists were needed to get them to the church, where they were laid in the chancel.

By 10 o'clock the church was crowded and the timely arrival of a squad of ten policemen from the Fifteenth precinct station house, in charge of Roundsmer Strausner and McGinley, kept the crowd from pressing into the seats reserved or those invited to be present.

Shortly after 10 o'clock the coffin, fol-lowed by the mourners, arrived. The sallbearers had already assembled in an ante-room, and the clergymen, Bishop Thompson of Mississippi, the Rev. Dr. Huntington of Grace church, and the Rev. Dr. Platt of Rochester were in waiting at the door. Headed by the clergy, who began the burial service, the procession passed into the chancel. Flowers covered the coffin completely. At the head was a cross of white roses This reached to the center of the coffin and a huge wreath of American Beauty oses, tied with red satin ribbon, covred the remainder.

There was not a seat to be had by this time, and many persons were stand-ing in the side aisles. As the last of the family party followed the casket up the aisle half a hundred curiosity seekers pressed forward, eager to get into the church along with them. "Get back there," yelled the policeman who was stationed in the vestibule. No one obeyed, all crowded ahead. The policeman did not parley any longer, but, raising his arms, began shoving In this way enough room was made in the vestibule to allow the sexton to close the door and to keep out the intruders. while the services were going on, and when the coffin was borne out they had to be pushed out ahead of it. One woman clung to an urn and would not arm and dragged her out in short or-

In the family party, which followed the body, were Heyward Hall McAllister, the dead man' son, supporting Mrs. | nelly and John McKee. McAllister.

Then came Rev. Francis Marion McAl-

The pallbearers were: Ex-Governor John Lee Carroll, Chauncey M. Depew, Edwin A. Post, James A. Burden, J. F. Loubat, B. K. Stevens, De Lancy Astor Kane, Cornellus Vanderbilt, Frederick Sheiden, E. Randolph Robinson, James W. Gerard, Bradley Martin, Sir Roderick Cameron and F. Diodate As the coffin was carried from the church, a band of eight French horns, two tubas and four trombones began playing the "Dead March" from Saul. Lander asked the privilege of furnishng this music as a last mark of respec and conducted in person. The remainder of the musical program was rendered by a full choir of presided at the organ. As the last notes of the horns died awy, the crowd pressed up the aisle. Some made straight for the chancel, where the floral offerings of Mr. McAllister's friends lay.

Others hurried to pew 113-the Mc and dut-flowers and was unoccupied. A woman in a long sealskin snatched up a big violet wreath near the altar and hid it under her cloak, but not quickly enough for a choir hoy not to see her. He told the sexton, who quick-

"I want that wreath," he demanded, "What wreath?" she asked innocent

"The one under your cloak." This was enough, and the woman rave it back. Others took single flowers and bunches, and some got away with them. One woman grabbed a handful of white roses from the McAllis-

"You can't have that," announced a man who was guarding it. "Can't I have one flower?" pleaded

The man took all the flowers from her without another word. The interment is a temporary one in the receiving vault at Greenwood, pending the family's decision as to whether the remains will receive final burial in this city or at Newport. Some of those who were present were: Thomas Cushing, Rhinelander Stewart, Lispenard Stewart, J. Dunbar Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Abercrombie, Mr. and Mrs. Townsend, Henry Clews, Matthew Astor Wilks, Edward Lauter bach, Colonel John Jay, Charles G. Franklin, Mrs. James A. Burden, Mr. and Mrs. I. Townsend Burden, Mr. and Mrs. H. Danbury, New Britain and Norwalk are places under consideration and one of these fowns will be chosen. The meeting adjourned until February 18, when it will reconvene in this city and reports with be heard as to the progress made in fifthing the eighth place, A telegram was received from Ted

Sullivan, the well known ball player, offering to place a club in New Haven if he was given a franchise. This has been granted, so the New Haven team for the coming season will be managed the grounds at Hamilton park.

Hugh F. Reddy, J. B. Billings of Bridgeport and Robert H. Young, a son "Nick" Young, the president of the National Baseball league, were spectators at the meeting.

> Suggestions to Fancy Workers. (From Harper's Bazar,)

In the substitution of pin-trays for in-cushions an opportunity is afforded for covering a part of the bureau or dressing table with a pretty sachet. These are in varying sizes, the smallest being infinitismal and the largest vast nough to conceal the whole bureau top. In the latter case no other cover Allisters-which was filled with wreaths is necessary, and the toilet accessories are laid upon the sachet, which, of course, is flat, and but lightly stuffed with the perfumed wadding. That is a dainty fancy which many a woman has now of keeping every article of her personal possession sufficiently in contac with the one odor she selects and solely adheres to for them to absorb and re tain a faint trace of it. Combs and brushes, laid with this intent upon the snohet, acquire an impalpable fragrance, which is delicately imparted to the hafr on which they are used. Nothing shows more lack of taste than the over-free use of perfumes. The violet, rose, heliotrope, whichever is used, should be faintly suggested rather than obtrusively perceived.

A sachet that was large enough to nearly cover a bureau top was among the bridal gifts at a very recent wedding, and was enough out of the ordinary to merit description. It was made of violet satin, scented with violet pow-der, and tacked, with a pearl bead covering each stitch, into a wavelike sur face. To have done this successfully the upper part of the satchet must have been cut considerably larger than the under part, and unless the satin was as thick and rich as in the model, a thir interling would have to be introduced to keep the billows from flattening down. The corners were decorated with very beautiful triangles of duchess lace, which could hardly be obtained except by cutting a lace handkerchief into four, and otherwise disposing of the cambric centre. The centre of the sachet was ornamented with a large initial, worked with seed pearls. At those portions of the edge left between the lace corners the satin is full enough to project slightly over and conceal the dge, so that no trimming is required. The sachets used for covering the bottom of bureau and closet drawers may be simply covered with slikelene or cheese-cloth, the scent powder being scattered between sheet wadding. Little muslin bags filled with the scent can be used in shoe-drawers and wardrobes. All Saints' Mission

The ladies of All Saints' mission thurch will hold their monthly supper at the house of Mrs. W. A. Pyle Tues day evening, February 5. A cordial invitation is extended to all who are interested in the work of the mission.

AGONIZING ECZEM

Feet Sore and Thumbs Useless. Doctors and Medicine no Avail. Terribie Suffering. Cured in Four Weeks by CUTICURA.

I have a boy, fifteen years old, who had the eczema so oftensive that I could not stay in the room with him. The poor boy suffered terribly. His feet were terribly sore; he could not wear any shoes, and had therefore to siay at home from school. When he put on dry stockings in the morning, they would in one-hour be saturated with moisture, and very oftensive even in the coldest weather. The disease began to spread over his body, especially his hands and fingers. The thumbs on both his hands became stiff and as useless as two withered sticks of wood. It would be useless for me to try to tell the suffering this boy endured. I took him to two different doctors, both gave him lots of medicine, but all to no use. He greew worse. I therefore despaired of ever having him cured. One day I saw the great benefits promised to those who would use Cerican Alexanders. I went right away to the drug store and bought them. However, I used them according to directions, and to-day I say truthfully to all the world, that my son is entirely cured, thank God and thank the discoverers of Curicana Alexanders. They cured him in four weeks as sound as a gold dollar.
